Rove Concepts;

Thank you for your additional efforts. It does appear that you have removed several more infringements, including the Eames Aluminum Group chairs. In light of your comment, I have not yet re-checked your social media pages. I do see, however, that several infringements remain on your website. Examples are attached. They include use of the EAMES name in connection with several dining chairs and in the meta-data of several of your pages. The Eames Lounge Chair still appears in news articles reproduced on your site, and in pages that have not been deleted.

We have further removed additional content as request please check. Some items listed such as social media and other specific pages we have provided instructions to our website's management company to remove. This should not take more than one week.

Rove Concepts;

I appreciate your attempt to comply with your legal obligations, and acknowledge that your website now lists the Eames Lounge Chair as having been "removed" from the site. I note, however, several continuing examples of infringement on your website and social media pages. Attached are at least 17 examples. Recall that our client owns the right to use the "Eames" name in commerce, as well as the various chair designs discussed in our prior correspondence. Please rectify these infringements immediately.

Eames Lounge Chair Comparison

RoveConcepts Reproduction

- 100% Full grain aniline leather, rather than wearing out will develop a patina over time. All leathers are imported directly from tanneries in Italy.
- Full grain leather gives a soft and supple touch making the chair extremely comfortable
- True to original. Thinner profile dense cushion armrest
- True to original. Thinner sleek piping
- High density grade PU injected seat foam provides plushness and most importantly holds its shape over time
- The only reproduction that features PU injected foam like the original design
- Leather is relaxed in the correct areas for the tufting feature

Other Reproduction

- Most are made with half, corrected grain leathers, this type of leather is hard, rough to the touch, and unnatural
- The armrest is bulky and the armrest padding is hard and uncomfortable
- Piping is significantly thicker and uneven
- Standard foam used does not provide proper support and quickly loses shape over time
- Leather is stretched taught to save on material cost and puts stress on the tufting from normal use
